Muscle for consumers

Got a car that's a lemon? A landlord who won't fix leaks?

Now there's an effective way for anyone to handle a consumer complaint, big or little. Consumer Action, a San Francisco - based six - year - old organization, is starting a consumer Complaint Resolution Committee which will meet every Tuesday night in Walnut Creek.

"It's very effective," promises committee organizer John Kay, who lives in Lafayette. "We have a lot of Consumer Action members in the Pleasanton - Livermore area (membership costs $15 per year) and we hope the committee will attract people from the Valley."

You don't have to be a member to drop in at the first committee meeting, Tuesday, March 29, 7 p.m. in the Co - Op supermarket on Geary Road, Walnut Creek. (Interstate 680 north to the Geary Road exit; go left over the freeway.)

You don't even have to have a complaint, although the committee is "primarily so people with complaints can help each other," Kay explains. You have to join CA in order to be an active member of the committee .

If you don't have a consumer problem now but develop one in the future you can drop in on a meeting at any point and start your own action, aided by more experienced group members.

Whether it's car repairs, a misrepresented toy, a can of tuna fish with a fishhook in it or a pair of shoes that self - destructs, Consumer Action wants to "teach consumers how to complain," Kay says.

Members of the committee first write a letter to the merchant they feel is guilty of fleecing them. Second step is a delegation of committee members who meet with the accused person to try to come to a reasonable settlement.

In "10 out of 1,000 cases," says Kay, a final step is an "educational picket." The group had enough clout to close down Concord Dodge after the owner was accused of fraud.

The eight - page monthly newspaper, "CA News," outlines a variety of consumer causes currently being tackled. There are deceptive toy ads on TV which lead to untold frustration because the doll isn't as lifelike as she looks and the expensive racing cars keep flying off the track when they go around the corner.

There are red lights some merchants shine on meat to make it look leaner and redder than it is (banned in Alameda County but not in Contra Costa.) And those bank ads which offer "highest legal interest rates" and free services — deceptive, says the CA staff.

Details on Consumer Action are available through the East Bay chapter, 2353 Broadway, Oakland 94612 (763 - 6466), or through San Francisco headquarters, 26 Seventh St., San Francisco, 94103 (626 - 4030.)

Mori unveils major tax reform plan

LIVERMORE — A major taxation shift will soon be offered by the powerful Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee, Assemblyman Floyd Mori said yesterday.

Talking to a Livermore Chamber of Commerce luncheon audience, Mori outlined a comprehensive tax revision package which would:

— provide state relief for homeowners based on income and the ability to pay. The state would reimburse tax monies paid by households with up to $40,000 income. A progressive scale would levy no property taxes on households with $5,000 or less income.

Mori estimated this part of the package would cost the state $400 million.

— abolish the inventory tax, long considered a burden on business. This would eliminate a $450 million income source for local governments.

— seek a constitutional amendment to "split the tax rate," with the state for the first time taking over the power to tax industrial and commercial properties.

This money would be used by the state to take over responsibility of general aid, welfare, partial medical costs and other costs now burdening local governments.

— provide local governments with alternative income producing methods, such as a "piggy back" income tax collected by the state and turned over to participating local agencies.

A utility user's tax would be extended to general law cities as well as the charter cities which are now allowed that taxing power over entertainment and public utilities.

Mori said revenue sources eliminated through the proposed package would be replaced by closing loopholes and altering other taxation methods.

Included were revision of the capital gains schedule (to gain another $35 million), repeal of certain exemptions to the sales tax ($25 million), and a more progressive tax bracket revision which would up the state income by $170 million.

Foothill students Tammy Robertson and Roy Goble confront Decker

Walkout at Dublin, talk at Foothill

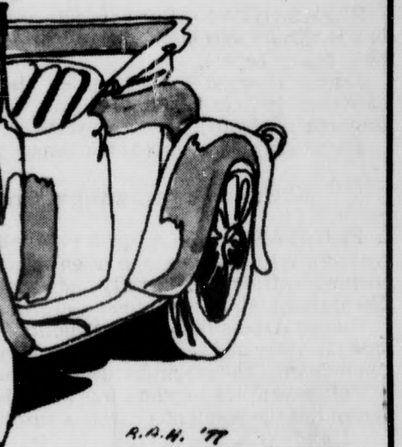
DUBLIN — Worried about what might happen to their spring semester credits if teachers strike April 14, an estimated 500 Dublin High School students brandished a political weapon of their own yesterday by walking out of class and showing how they can shut down the school if they choose.

"There won't be any school if there are no students," one student told The Times. He was right. The school district relies heavily on state aid paid for attendance of each student and if they boycott in large numbers, as yesterday, it will be a new element in what previously was a two - way dispute between teachers and administration.

The Dublin students walked back to class after an hour of political talk yesterday; they will meet in the school gym second period today to hear from administrators and teachers on the issues.

They also will coordinate their future actions with students at Foothill and Amador High Schools, which had develpments of their own yesterday.

At Amador High School, Principal Ralph Laird reported that 30 students tried to get others out of classes to protest the stalled teacher - administration negotiations, but were unsuccessful. Ten or so of those students marched to the Pleasanton Times office where they shouted slogans and waved signs calling for an end to the impasse.



Ralph Laird

Laird commented that the wind was taken out of the organizers' sails because last week student leaders were promised information sessions with School Superintendent Bruce Newlin and teacher negotiator Enoch Haga. That meeting will occur

The Pleasanton Park and Recreation Commission will meet at 8 p.m. today in the City Council Chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

The commission will consider a request to light the tennis courts at Loma Alta Park. Director of Recreation and Human Resources Robert Caporusso recommends that the local homeowners association, which requested the lighting, pay for it and the city control it.

The commission should also consider what effect lighting would have on neighboring homes and how the energy situation might affect it, said Caporusso.

Valley man named to county unit

OAKLAND — Kenneth Jon Geppert of Pleasanton was appointed yesterday to the county's Health Services Agency Governing Body.

The nomination came from supervisor Valerie Raymond.

Geppert, 38, has a bachelor's degree in public administration from San Jose State, and currently is working on his master's degree.

He has served 14 years in local government, including the City of Pleasanton's "Ad Hoc Traffic Safety Committee," and six months as an administrative aid with the San Jose City Council.

He now works for the research and development division of the San Jose Police Department.

Geppert, his wife and three children live at 7012 Via Quito in Pleasanton.

Pleasanton trustees backed by report

A fact-finder's report made public Tuesday sides with the administration of the Pleasanton Joint School District on the matter of salary increase but says, on binding arbitration of grievances, that the district should place grievance matters under the voluntary rules of the American Arbitration Association.

Following a mutual review of the fact-finder's report Monday night by administration and teacher representatives, the Pleasanton school board said it could not accept the total report.

However, the way for further talks, as early as this afternoon, was assured. Teacher unit leaders were to have met Tuesday afternoon to formulate a response to be given this afternoon at district headquarters in Pleasanton.

With the fact-finder's report public, the impasse proceedings of collective bargaining are completed.

Under bargaining procedure, the school board can now make the final decisions in regard to salary, binding arbitration and other matters that were taken to fact-finding.

The teachers' alternatives are to strike or accept the district's proposal.

In the report, fact-finder Robert Leventhal says "there is insufficient date on this record to support AVTA's position that a 5.25 per cent salary increase is justified when the statutory criteria are applied."

Under the grievance procedure segment, Leventhal states "There was no affirmative showing the district would be any more ready for arbitration next year, than this. They must at some point accept responsibility for agreements reached.

Tom Zach, AVTA president, reached late yesterday, said teacher unit leadership will present its response at 4 today.

Hard times for regional park water

OAKLAND — Eighty-nine spartan emergency drought measures were approved yesterday by the East Bay Regional Park District Board.

Visitors to local regional parks, including Del Valle, Shadow Cliffs and Sunol, may expect to see some of the shrubs and trees allowed to die, and some of the less drought resistent grasses allowed to shrivel up instead of being watered.

The district aims to save 50 per cent of their outdoor water use and 25 per cent on their drinking and washing supply this summer because of drought.

The board agreed to install 5,000 gallon redwood water tanks at Sunol Regional Park and nearby Camp Ohlone to take advantage of the area's spring water supply which has never been tapped before.

The untreated water will be used for flushing toilets, firefighting and other emergencies beginning in three weeks.

At the campgrounds at Del Valle, Sunol and other spots in the district, showers will be slowed. If the public continues to use too much water, there will be only cold-water showers for the determined camper.

Windows won't be washed anymore. Any plant showing signs of withering will be pulled up. Grass will be grown twice as high as normal to slow evaporation. Soft drink dispensers will even be replaced with models that don't make ice.

Dublin looks at incorporation

DUBLIN — Incorporation will be studied by five committees that have been formed at the request of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce.

He pointed out the chamber is neither for or against incorporation. Their interest is to gather facts and make them available to the public.

The purpose of the committees is to establish what incorporation means in taxes, police protection, planning, zoning, budget and growth.

Serving on the Political committee are: Kathie Waterson (chairperson), Steven Wright, Tom McCormick, Sam Wills, Jim Griffes, Lyn Appel, Shirley Crumpler, Philip Crumpler.

Cigarette burns awning at Crafty Lady shop

PLEASANTON — A spent cigarette butt caused approximately $150 damage when it was thrown onto an awning in front of the Crafty Lady arts and crafts store a 520 Main St. about 8:30 Monday night.

Owner Arlene Blasquez told police that a couple came into the store and said the awning in front of her store was smoldering. The potential fire was doused with water.

Walkout at Dublin

during third period today.

Meetings are the order of the day at Foothill High School, too, where a large rally on campus last week set up meetings with teacher and school board representatives. School Board President Wallace Decker met with the student council yesterday and a teacher will meet with the group today.

The demonstration at Dublin High School was the first at that school.

The biggest anxiety is faced by seniors, who fear that if teachers strike, they won't have enough credits to graduate in June.

Although the crowd in front of the school appeared to be 25 or 35 per cent of the school's 2,000 or so population, a look in one classroom revealed only two students with their teacher, and in another room 10 students.

Loretz on Pleasanton's most famous bench

Time to give up the home, and the bench

PLEASANTON — Though Paul Loretz has sold his little stucco bungalow on Spring Street, the famous bide - a - wee bench which has sported many different Loretz - inspired signs over the years will stay.

After all, it's a community institution for anyone walking or driving by on Spring Street, said Loretz, who will be moving into an apartment in a few months. And he couldn't very well take the bench with him anyway, he noted.

Loretz's parting from his home of 30 years may be a little tearful from nostalgia, but it is wholly a course he wants, he said. It's time to give up yardwork for the greater leaisure time of an apartment, said Loretz, whose septegenarian years belie his quick wit and active involvement around the community, especially with the Senior VIP's.

The building's new owners promise to leave the yard, including the bench and wishing well, intact just like the day Loretz moved in back in 1946, when the house was 20 years old. A small business will be installed in the house, but it will be compatible with the building.

A car comes by the house every minute or two these days, but when Loretz moved in, the city had only 3,500 persons compared to 33,000 today. One of the first things Loretz saw when he moved in was a herd of 75 to 100 dairy cows being moved up the street to a pasture on Kottinger Avenue.

"I ran outside and got some of the manure for my garden," said Loretz. But city officials didn't like that impromptu reenactment of the old Chisolm Trail and after that the dairy rancher had to move the herd in trucks so vehicle traffic was not bothered, said Loretz.

Loretz didn't waste any time buying the home 30 years ago. He was told on Halloween night that his sister and brother - in - law were selling the Vineyard Avenue farm where he was living. The next day he opened his copy of the Pleasanton Times, stopped at the first want ad, visited the house, and 20 minutes later put his money down.

Most people think the wishing well in the front yard is for decoration only. But one day Loretz saw a boy throw a quarter in it. It seems the kid threw in a dime a few weeks earlier and got the bicycle he wanted. Now he was working on a pony. It's tough to leave such good, income - producing property, he joked, but it's the right decision for him now.

Volunteer teaches Chinese

LIVERMORE — You read the books from back to front; each of the 32 characters in the alphabet has four tones; and the Chinese alphabet song sounds like a national anthem.

Is it hard to learn Chinese?

"Nope," says tiny five - year - old Priscilla Chau.

"No trouble at all," claims her 13 - year - old sister, Rebecca.

The two girls, along with eight other classmates, spent an inviting Monday afternoon bent over brightly printed books sprinkled with completely unintelligible Chinese symbols.

Unintelligible to the casual observer, that is. To the eager students in the unique after - school class, the symbols were beginning to make a lot of sense.

"After all," said their teacher. "It's their third lesson."

Esther Hsu (pronounced like "shoe") decided to devote Monday and Thursday afternoons to teaching Chinese language lessons, free, because "I wanted to do something for the kids."

A native of Shanghai, she wants to see her 10 - year - old son, Chester, and other children of Chinese ancestry, grow up speaking and writing the language. She teaches the Mandarin dialect because she says it's becoming the official language of both mainland and nationalist China.

Teacher Esther Hsu

She also speaks Cantonese, which she says is the dialect commonly spoken in Chinatown.

A Livermore resident for the past six years, Esther has lived in the United States since 1965, when she married Yu - Wen Hsu, then a doctoral student at Syracuse University, N.Y. She and her family left Shanghai when she was eight years old to live in Taiwan.

The books, chart and record she uses for her class come from the Taiwan Educational Center in San Francisco. She won't use any of the abundant materials available from mainland China because she's opposed to the country's political philosophy.

The class is held from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Sonoma Avenue School, where Chester is a pupil and where Mrs. Hsu has been a volunteer for several years.

Sitting in tidy rows, the four boys and six girls proudly sing out the alphabet and then bend over their lined paper to practice writing characters. Homework for Thursday was to write the words "You" and "Me" 10 times each.

"You have lot of chance to get a star, lot of chance to get a prize," urged their teacher. Reviewing the last lesson, she had the class repeat what sounded like "tsao - um" — "Good morning."

"Don't be afraid to say it. If you don't say it, you forget pretty soon."

Many of the students speak Chinese at home. Two mothers, Barbara Chau, a native of Hong Kong, and Becky Wu, who comes from Shanghai, go to class with their children in order to learn to write the language they already speak.

Two boys, Alan and Eric Lee, come from Pleasanton to their new class. Other children would like to attend but can't get transportation across town because both parents are at work.

With their perky young teacher and lots of encouragement from the family, the students are making fast progress. "When you're young," notes Mrs. Hsu, "that's the best time to start a new language."

SR pupils prepare speeches

Students in the fifth through the eighth grades throughout the San Ramon Valley Unified School District are choosing topics and preparing speeches for the individual competitions to be held this month in preparation for the district - wide speech tourney scheduled for Saturday, April 16.

The second annual speech competition will be held in the theater at Monte Vista High School from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Each school will select a single speaker from each grade level through a competition at that level, to go on to the district tourney. Individual school winners will be submitted to Art Dougherty, fine arts coordinator, by April 1.

Judges will listen to original oratories written and presented by students in each of the four participating grades. Students will speak for no more than five minutes and will make their presentations twice during the tournament. Those receiving the most points within their respective grades will be awarded first place honors.

Topics for the various grades were selected to allow students the opportunity for individual creativity. The fifth grade students will speak on "My Favorite Character" and the sixth graders will focus on "The 21st Century." Seventh grade participants will discuss "The Greatest Gift" and the eighth grade speakers will present "I Dream for the Future."

The first place district winners for each grade will receive at $25 United States Savings Bond.

Amador teachers respond today to pact offers

The Amador Valley Teachers Association, representing teachers in the Pleasanton Joint School District, will give its response this afternoon to a nine - point contract proposal by the administration, presented in the wake of a fact - finder's report made public Tuesday.

Pleasanton district administration and teacher negotiators met for seven hours, until 2 a.m., Monday night to go over the fact - finding report submitted by Robert Leventhal.

The board subsequently stated it could not accept the total report from Leventhal and his associates, Keith Breo (the administration rep) and James Sutton (California Teachers Association rep).

Basically, the report sides with teachers on the crucial question of binding arbitration of grievances and with the administration on salary.

The fact - finding hearing was held on Feb. 10 and covered wage adjustment, hours of employment, assignment and transfer policy and evaluations.

By law, the report is only advisory to both parties, and the school board must make the findings and recommendations public within 10 days after receiving it. AVTA and the board received the report March 16.

The administration's reaction to the report, which is now on record as not accepting the sum total, could go a long way in influencing the teacher unit leadership and representative council in the Amador Valley Joint High School District.

Dave Woolworth, president of Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association, had indicated the teacher leadership would wait and see how the administration reacted to the report.

AVSEA representative council has set an April 14 strike date. Presumably, if there is no settlement on a contract for 1976-77 by that day teachers would walkout.

Teachers in the Amador district have been directed to "clean out their desks" and a "crisis headquarters" has been established on Main Street in Pleasanton.

The Pleasanton school board, which initially convened at 6 Monday evening, came up with the nine-point proposal "in the spirit of compromise and in a good faith effort to proceed together into all aspects of collective bargaining."

The major points were:

1) Salary schedule increase of 4 per cent.

2) Contract duration— from time of signing to June 30, 1978.

3) Hours of employment— Faculty, planning, ECE meetings, etc., up to 70 hours per school year.

4) Duty free lunch period. Minimum of 30 and maximum of 45 minutes.

5) Transfers— add provision that "involuntary transfers shall not be made for disciplinary or punitive reasons."

6) Evaluations— add provision that "prior to rendering a negative evaluation, evaluators shall so advise the affected evaluatee. If the evaluatee requests, a meeting shall be held to review the evaluation prior to the preparation of a formal written evaluation."

7) Grievance procedure— add sentence that "The grievant and his/her conferee may, upon request, appear before the board in executive session to present the grievants' rationale as to the lack of substantial impact on the operation of the district."

The board later rejected the association's revisions to the above, specifically their definition of what constitutes "substantial impact on the district."

AVTA leadership several weeks ago has stated it would accept the fact-finder's report in advance of it being issued.

Tom Zach, AVTA president, said the definition of what constitutes "substantial impact on the district" was a key point at this time.

There was an unsubstantiated report Tuesday that the Pleasanton board would meet Thuursday night and finalize the 1976-77 contract no matter what occurred today.

Learning hub work starts on Chabot Valley campus

Walls for the Independent Learning Center, a science and general classroom addition and a multi-purpose building went up yesterday at Chabot College Valley Campus.

The ILC will house counseling offices, a reading center and study area when it opens in September. The "300 building" will be an extension of the present mathematics and science classroom wing. The multi-purpose room will include shower facilities for physical education classes and a performing arts area.

Dr. Barbara Mertes, Dean of Chabot Valley Campus, said all three structures will open in September to accomodate growing enrollments.

At a meeting of the South County Community College District trustees last week, authorization was given staff to continue working with architects on planning a standby heating system for Chabot Valley Campus as well as the main campus in Hayward.

Dr. Reed L. Buffington, president of the college, told the board that he has been advised by P.G&E officials that the college's priority to receive natural gas would drop into a lower classification next Dec. 22. If the college has no standby system, P.G&E has no further authority to provide natural gas to heat the plant.

State funds may be available to cover part of the expense of a standby system. The deadline to submit the project planning guide for state monies is April 12. Between now and April 12, the staff will also work with the architect in preparing the project sheet for submission to Sacramento.

It was emphasized that the board's action is temporary and that they still have two weeks to consider a report by the architects outlining three proposals for standby fuel.

One calls for conversion of the present existing boilers from gas only to gas/oil firing. The boilers would be positioned to fire on oil or gas by means of a switch on the boiler panel. Each of the 21 boilers will be serviced by one 1,000 gallon fuel oil tank with provisions for extracting oil from the tank to feed the boiler and returning excess oil to the tank. Tank and fuel oil piping will be installed totally underground below a paved or planted area.

The architects' estimates for these proposals are $300,000 for the above outlined plan, and $290,000 and $670,000 for the other two proposals.

Livermore questions PG&E profits

LIVERMORE — City council wants the state Public Utilities Commission to justify a policy of "guaranteeing" certain profit levels for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., which is proposing a 13.2 per cent electric rate increase this summer.

Part of the increase in utility rates, noted Councilman Glen Dahlbacka, is the drought which has diminished hydroelectric sources.

"Because the PUC guarantees a certain percentage of return," he complained, PG&E "doesn't have to face the ravages of mother nature."

Moments earlier Roman J. Morkowski of Livermore blasted the utility company for asking everyone to conserve energy and following a policy of "wanting higher profits on less production."

"We should also ask the public utility to share the cost in hard times," said Dahlbacka.

"We don't have all the facts," said Councilman Dale Turner, "but PG&E should lower its profit expectations."

He suggested asking the PUC to "delay this action until nature returns to normal."

Sy Beebe, manager of the local PG&E office, told council shortages of hydroelectric power have caused additional costs of $460 million to ship in low sulhur Borneo oil for his company's service area.

Council agreed to ask PUC comments on the matter.

In other council action:

— City Manager Bill Parness was instructed to meet with Floyd and Doris Taylor of Richmond, who "would like to give Livermore a taxi company which would employ local residents."

The Taylors, who own the Blue and White Cab Co., had questions about rate setting.

— council turned down a suggestion by Jerry Wilverding to use special funding from the Comprehensive Educational Training Act to supply a bus system with seven different routes, each run on a separate day.

Wilverding asked why a report by Ed Schilling, assistant to the city manager, included only projected costs and no projections of income.

City Manager Bill Parness told him the estimated cost per ride would be between $4 and $4.30, but it would be difficult to assess riders more than 25 cents a ride.

— Public Works Director Dan Lee submitted a holding tank comparison report which showed Livermore's new standards to be "more flexible" than other communities in the Valley. The holding tanks were authorized shortly after the regional water quality control board placed a cease and desist order banning further sewer hookups in Livermore until there is a solution to dumping effluent in the creeks.

— Bob Thiecke, manager of Cal Water Co., showed council a humorous film about wasted water and said free water conservation kits would be available later this week. The kits include special plastic bottles for toilet tanks, shower head restrictors and a dye tablet that changes water color if there is a leak.

— Council agreed unanimously to adopt a resolution eliminating sexism in language of official correspondence and documents of the city.

— Parness said acquisition of the three acre eucalyptus grove near Stanley and Murrieta blvds., would cost more than the expected $27,000. He noted additional $15.819 tax assessments are pending on the property. Total cost will now be $43,280. He said it would be appropriate to ask Zone 7 financial assistance, since improvements would aid channelization of water.

Mori reveals tax program

A joint income of $31,000 is now taxed at the maximum 11 per cent, but the new bracket revision would up that to 15 per cent of a household income going to the state.

Mori said it was important to shift the taxes to those that can afford it.

"This committee approach is unique," he said, noting numerous tax reform measures introduced each year by individual legislators.

The committee is attempting to consider them all and draw up one package instead, he said.

He gave an example of a household with $10,000 income and a $1,000 property tax bill. The basic tax for that property owner would be $300, he said. The state would pick up 75 per cent of the excess and tack the remaining $175 onto the homeowner's bill, totalling $475.

He also said the package would provide relief to renters on the same basis of income and rental amount.

Senior citizen tax deferral would be part of the package also, allowing the elderly to refrain from property taxes until their death or sale of their property.

Mori said abolishing the inventory tax and replacing it with the split tax rate would remove competition between local governments for social needs monies.

Grounds, James H. Mack, Eddie Jomack, M.N. Hauser, John Rajala, Kathy Anderson, Ed Aubin, Jim Lulofs, Bill Gayua, Doug Hall, Mildred Aubin, Mary Jo Rajala, Bud Appel.

Stanley J. Swihart is chairperson of the contract services committee.

Others are: John J. Fox, Frank Havill, Gary Fritsch, Dennis Jeffery and James H. Mack.

They will look into the feasibility of contracting all community services requiring technically trained manpower and equipment. Serving on the Budget and Finances committee are: Joe Madigan (chairperson), Richard E. Stein, C.R. Anderson, Cheryl D. Rodby, Rom McCormick, Joyce Wargin, Beatrice Burton, Glenn White and Clarence A. Nelson.

The Election Planning and Publicity committee consists of Don Tunnicliff, chairperson; Claudia McCormick and Ron Roth.

They will delve into the problems of setting up dates, necessary procedures, forms and facilities, obtaining funding to finance the campaign and organizing people for the election.

Burton said the chamber was instigating the study since residents and business people had indicated interest in gaining local control through incorporation. They further suggested it would be a good idea to have the surplus monies generated by sales tax remain in the city coffers. Now those monies are dispersed at the county's discretion.

Foothill bike path draws big response

PLEASANTON — Marian Anderson is getting good response to her campaign to get a bike path installed in the vicinity of Foothill Road, she told The Times yesterday.

No officials have promised anything, but many concerned residents of the area west of Interstate 680 called her and pledged their support, including the circulation of petitions calling for the bike path.

Anderson also got in touch with the city's Director of Engineering Services, Don Sooby, who gave her copies of all correspondence from citizens who in 1972 requested a bicycle path for the Foothill Road area.

County officials at that time discouraged a bike path along Foothill Road as too expensive; instead the county suggested construction of one along the right of way west of Interstate 680. The land there belongs to the state and is flat so site preparation would be minimal, runs the argument.

Not clear is whether the city, state or county would pay for the cost of paving such a bike path.

Anderson doesn't care whether a bike path runs along I - 680 or Foothill Road, just so the bicycle riders in Highland Oaks, Stoneridge and Oakhill are served.

She noted that Alameda County installed a nice, separate, paved bike path north of I - 580 running through Dublin to the county line at Alcosta Boulevard. It's hard to see why the county wouldn't spend money south of I - 580, too, she said.

Many of the callers yesterday had a "what's the use?" attitude, said Anderson. They have been through it before in 1972 and they don't have any hopes of winnng. But Anderson feels that the need for a bike path is there and if people are persistent, it will pay off.

Anyone interested in the petition, can reach Anderson weekdays at 846-7676.

By AL FISCHER

The number of Academy Award nominations being a good barometer, look for "All the President's Men," "Network," and "Rocky" to take away a lion's share of the coveted Oscars next Monday night.

Oscars will be presented again this year, with live coverage on television (Even if "Network" wins some of the statuettes!), from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center.

Nominees for best picture, aside from the above named, include "Bound for Glory" and "Taxi Driver."

The contenders are a cut above average. We have seem them all, a couple of them twice, and believe that "All the President's Men" represents the highest and best use of the filmmaking art.

Both "Rocky" and "Network" will gather many votes in the best film balloting. Unfortunately, a tabulation of votes is never released ... for we'd be interested in seeing what the film people thought of the television expose theme of "Network."

Two of the most compelling films of the year didn't make the top five ... "Voyage of the Damned" and "Face to Face," the latter starring Liv Ullman.

Peter Finch, who died Jan. 14 of a heart attack, could become the first posthumous award winner for best actor. Finch starred as the mad television commentator Howard Beale in "Network." We believe Finch's performance deserves the Oscar in this category, though William Holden, a favorite in the industry and Finch's co-star, is a strong second choice. We believe Holden's work in "Network" was drab at best and not deserving of any Oscar consideration.

Also nominated were Sylvester Stallone for "Rocky," Robert DeNiro for "Taxi Driver," and Giancarlo Giannini for "Seven Beauties" ... a real long shot.

Ullman should win the Oscar for best actress ... or there is just no justice whatsoever. Our second choice would be Talia Shire, for her sensitive portrayal of Stallone's girlfriend in "Rocky." Other nominees are Marie-Christine Barrault in "Cousin Cousine," a very well done comedy, Faye Dunaway for "Rocky" (a good long shot in the betting), and Sissy Spacek for "Carrie," our nominee for one of the worst films of the year.

The supporting actor and actress awards are difficult to analyze.

The actor nominees are all deserving but we believe Jason Robards will win it for his precise portrayal of Ben Bradlee, the Washington Post editor in "All the President's Men." Other nominees are Burgess Meredith as the grizzled fight manager in "Rocky," Burt Young (Rocky, also), Ned Beatty for "Network," Laurence Olivier for "Marathon Man."

Lee Grant, as the tortured wife of a German Jew college professor, is our choice for best supporting actress. Our second choice in this very competitive vote is Jane Alexander for "All the President's Men." Other nominees are 14 - year - old Jodie Foster for "Taxi Driver," Piper Laurie for "Carrie"(Ugh!), and Beatrice Straight for "Network."

Nominees for best direction are Sidney Lumet of "Network," John G. Avildsen of "Rocky," Ala J. Pakula for "All the President's Men," Ingmar Bergman for "Face to Face" and Lina Wertmuller for "Seven Beauties." We'll go with Lumet's powerful work with the script and story line of "Network."

If there were any surprises (aside from Dustin Hoffman not being nominated for "President's Men" or "Marathon"), it was that Academy voters looked abroad for the first time in recent years.

BART, revisited

Our good friend Robert "BART" Allen takes us to task in a letter carried elsewhere on this page. The representative for East Alameda County on that rapid transit board has some percentage challenges to our recent editorial thrust at BART, and we don't intend to get into a quantitative tiff with Bob over the transit district's evident shortcomings.

The important area of our disagreement comes when Bob Allen discusses the "Valley Extension" ... that ellusive program for providing this gathering of taxpayers with the same service now provided taxpayers throughout San Francisco and much of the "metropolitan East Bay."

The Times was quoting Barc Simpson, president of the BART board of directors, when that gentleman advised a Walnut Creek Chamber of Commerce gathering that extension of fixed rail transit service into East Contra Costa County was "unlikely" and certainly not very high on the board's list of priorities. We have a reporter's tape of that conversation to back up our news story.

Mr. Simpson would (according to his own carefully - worded letter also sent to this newspaper) like to retract that "no extended service" statement. That's fine with us. It's also fine when Mr. Allen says "you're going to get full BART service just as soon as I am convinced the Valley wants that convenience more than we dread the growth impact."

We do not recall electing Mr. Allen as this basin's Chief Growth Controller. We are certain there was no such condition put forward when the BART Boosters were pushing all of us, anywhere within these three counties, to vote in favor of that two billion dollar venture (less Allen's 20 percent correction) and which now functions in 60 percent of that area at 80 percent efficiency.

Let the BART board president fire and fall back; let our own representative offer his conditional "We shall!" In the meantime we East County peasants keep paying a bundle in taxes for a servce we aren't getting, will never get, may possibly get if — . Choose one. It's a new wrinkle in the old BART game.

Jobless youths

The employment picture for young people is not bright in the United States these days; it is even worse in other parts of the world.

A recent report out of Geneva tells us that the numbers of unemployed youth in the world's 24 richest countries reached 7 million last year. The reasons for this record - breaking waste of young talent are many — the economic slump is a big factor.

But there is evidence also that "our educational systems are not turning out people who are in tune with the job market." That is a problem we could do something about, even at our suburban level.

There is plenty of proof right here of scores of college graduates frustrated in pursuit of their chosen career, turning to one of the local fast - food places, there to be trained as a "chef." We find no fault with a restaurant job; we do question the wisdom of spending four or five years in a tax - supported university, only to wind up as a fry cook.

The International Labor Organization calls the under - 25 unemployment picture "the industrialized world's gravest problem." The ILO finds further that most young people complete their formal education "only to be confronted with a strange world of labor," requiring skills and behavior they have not gained in 13 or 17 years of schooling.

Added to a steady maturing of the labor market (more of us are older, retaining productive skills longer) the hard fact is the uncertain youngster seeking that "entry level" position is going to be competing with a seasoned worker, perhaps even semi - retired, who offers the employer considerably more experience, for no more pay.

When our public schools get over the trauma of teacher contract talks, perhaps there will be time to evaluate the education being offered, trying to relate the skills and motivations we teach to the world new adults must live in.

Forum on taxes

Property taxes and assessment practices are like the weather ... each of us talks about them a great deal, but we rarely do anything about them.

You have the opportunity to get out of that rut this week.

A forum being coordinated by the League of Women Voters, and attracting some very knowledgeable people in this field, should provide a unqiue opportunity for probing the mysteries of property taxes and assessment practices.

The Little Theater at Granada High School in Livermore is the place; Thursday, 7:30 p.m. is the time.

Should prove interesting. And who knows, it might even do some good!

Hindsight/Foresight

Obscenity laws

As a followup to a recent column titled "Morality and the Media," which concluded that there are few bounds on publication and distribution of what could be considered pornographic materials in this country, we have received informational items via Rep. Robert Dornan from Citizens for Decency through Law.

CDL's objective is to see the laws which control pornography enforced. "We do not hold ourselves up as a judge or jury to decide what particular film, book or magazine, etc. is pornographic or not; but rather, we believe that a judge or jury should indeed be empowered and given the chance to allow communities to control this plague which has ruined so many lives and debased so many human beings and crushed so many hopes."

This public, non - profit, non - denominational group was established 20 years ago by Charles H. Keating, Jr. to seek strict enforcement of the existing obscenity laws.

CDL's approach is to inform the public, and "to use the law as our weapon." The Cleveland-based group says that "as citizens we have both the right and the responsibility to cooperate in the enforcement of obscenity laws, both civil and criminal. CDL actively aids and assists official agencies in their efforts at enforcement. CDL attorneys maintain an up-to-date library of case law which is regularly made available to prosecuting attorneys and district attorneys throughout the nation."

Yes, there are obscenity laws!

And, wonder of wonders, sometimes they're even enforced.

Such as the case of "Hustler Magazine" . . . . . though the decision of the judge is now on appeal.

Our feigned surprise comes from the fact that all one has to do to wonder if there are any such laws is to browse through the offerings at a magazine rack, consult the "listings" of the new cult of movie houses that have flourished in the last decade, or the "businesses" presenting other "personal services" . . . which can be found right here in suburbia if you don't want to go all the way into the big city.

But CDL does not publish lists of books, and does not participate in boycotts of stores, theatres or other outlets of pornographic material.

The organization does, however, encourage organizing a chapter — "then take the time to write to your local prosecutor, to the local newspaper, and to the judges and police officials in your community to express your concern. Take the time to find out what is playing at your neighborhood theatres — what is being sold in your local newsstands and drugstores. Talk to your friends, talk to the merchants," concludes the CDL statement.

This individual initiative was no better exemplified than in a recent situation in Livermore — concerning alleged pornographic cards.

To quote Dante, "The hottest places in hell are reserved for those who, in a time of great moral crisis, maintain their neutrality."

A new trustee

Editor, The Times:

According to the current plans I should assume my duties as a trustee of the Livermore School Board on Tuesday, March 19, 1977.

I am pleased that my election campaign was characterized by the expression of ideas concerning educational and administrative policies rather than attacks on individuals. I wish to convey my sincere thanks to the many citizens and parents whose voluntary help and spontaneous support made up for any lack of an experienced campaign organization.

Even though I did not have the opportunity of meeting all of the people who voted for me, I hope I can justify their confidence by my performance of the duties of trustee.

Supports Supt.

Editor, The Times:

I read in the papers about turmoil brewing among teachers of the Amador High and the Pleasanton Elementary School Districts. I am disgusted at the personal pot-shots that are being taken at Dr. Newlin, others in administration and the trustees. ...

Ms. Zachritz of the Dublin High English Department ... was shocked and embarrassed by the many errors contained in a letter written by Dr. Newlin and assured the parents "that such usage is not taught in our schools." Right on! The teaching of English in our schools, grades K-12, is all but nonexistent. I don't hold Dr. Newlin responsible for that. I hold each classroom teacher responsible ...

There was another letter written by seven math teachers from Dublin High. The teachers proceeded to give us some "facts." Fact No. 1 deals with hiring guards to protect the High School Campuses at $1,000 per weekend ... I read a letter written by Mr. Buonsante who is a teacher in the elementary district, stating that the unrest among the teachers is being transmitted to their students because children are very sensitive people.

... afford $1,000 protection per weekend rather than many thousands of dollars for destruction acts such as the recent fire at Dublin High. ...

Fact No. 2: There are strained relations between the District and the teachers. I agree but it is definitely not one sided as you would have the public believe.

Fact No. 3: Teacher morale is at an all time low. ... That's not the administrations fault. ...

Fact No. 4: 150 teachers gave a "no confidence" vote to Dr. Newlin. ... I have personally worked with Dr. Newlin on the Superintendent's District Advisory Committee ... I find him to be open, personable and wanting very much to work for the best educational community possible.

Fact No. 5: Teachers are united in their demands for a fair and just contract. Teachers ... have, right now ... a personal service contract in which you are guaranteed employment in May for the complete following year — I know of no other profession or Fact No. 7: Dr. Newlin as the highest administrator must stand accountable. I agree. Dr. Newlin is accountable to the Boards of Trustees and the Boards are accountable to ... member of this community. The teachers are directly accountable to the administrator.

It's hard work

Editor, The Times:

Freida Dimestore's rhetoric of March 16 is one of the most clever expressions of ignorance I have ever seen . . . Her, his (whatever) lack of understanding of the teacher's job is typical of so many who consider themselves experts because they have been students . . . .

I have over 7½ years of college education and 14 years experience in my job as a high school math teacher. I am paid for 181 days work — no paid vacation, no paid holidays, no overtime, no Christmas bonus.

Fourteen years ago my annual salary was $5400. It increased rapidly for a few years as I gained experience and spent my summers in college courses to move down and across the salary schedule. This is my third year at my present position on that schedule and in these three years my salary has increased a total of approximately 9% — not the 27% the School Board would have you believe. I have lost 15% on the cost of living.

. . . take my daily salary for 181 days and apply it to the average work year for a comparably trained employee in business or industry, 230 days. It comes out to slightly under $25,000 . . . . The best I could do — teaching the full school year, adult school 2 nights a week, and summer school for six weeks, is approximately $21,000. I've tried this but I can't handle it. Working with 150 personalities each day is tiring. Teaching them is exhausting . . .

Now I don't expect to make a lot more money as a teacher but I would like to keep up with the cost of living to feed my kids, make my house payments, and take a short vacation every couple of years.

Finally, Freida, if you have any doubts about the work teachers do, come by Dublin High and spend a day with any one of us. We don't hide out behind phoney names and fecal poetry.

round the town

I found him leaning against a stack of used posters, in the back of his shop. Peter Printem was far from the picture of four - color happiness which brightened the huge sign across the front of his shop — "Let Pete Print'em," it said.

The obvious discomfort of my old friend prompted me to inquire as to his health.

"Oh, it's just the same old poster blues I get in between each election campaign," Pete explained.

Is it because he misses the profitable poster printing business which only comes at election time?

"No," Pete replied, "it's because I get so frustrated over the inability of my posters to leave any kind of enduring message. Every campaign season I'm called upon to turn out thousands upon thousands of these political posters. People spend lots of money with me, I work hard to turn out a good poster, hundreds of volunteers run around tacking these messages up on trees and telephone poles all over the place... and for what?"

I assured Pete that I looked upon political posters as an important part of the campaign effort, almost as effective as newspaper advertisements in that regard.

"Oh sure," he agreed. "People look forward to seeing the campaign posters. I try to keep the message short and snappy. Play up the candidate's name...along with his catchy slogan. But that's just the trouble... the posters turn out better than the candidates!"

Now, if I had not known Peter Printem as a humble person, I would take that last remark as so much printer's bravado. But Pete simply isn't a man given to idle claims. What then prompted this startling conclusion as to the merits of posters over politicians??

"The record is right there," Pete said, directing my attention to a large stack of posters in his shop. "I've been going over some of my past efforts, comparing that work to the record of the candidates...and it's all mighty discouraging," my friend concluded.

"Take that handsome broadsheet over there," he advised me. "The one showing Ronald Reagan holding a large pair of scissors with the words 'CUT TRIM AND SQUEEZE WITH RONNIE.' It was a great poster, really helped Governor Reagan get elected to a second term, I'm told. But now, look at this analysis of the Reagan years in Sacramento...turns out we spent more than ever before, hired more state employes, raised taxes to record levels...You don't see much proof of squeezing and trimming in that financial record."

True, I agreed, but one little slogan slipped onto a Reagan poster should not convince Peter Printem that all of his political posters are a lie.

"Oh no?" Pete said, agitated. "Well then take this poster...see the handsome drawing of Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, Sr.?...and the slogan...'A LEGACY OF EXCITING PROMISES FOR CALIFORNIA.'

Now one of Pat Brown's best - known legacies is his son, Jerry Junior, right?" I agreed. Pete continued. "And, meaning no disrespect for Govenor Jerr, (who is also a good poster customer of mine) I have to ask you... What's exciting about the guy? Honest, maybe; even handsome, some say; but exciting? I've printed messages inside match book covers that were more exciting. If son Jerry is Governor Pat Brown's idea of 'an exciting legacy' then we poster printers are in real trouble."

Well, I countered, Pat Brown left us a lot of other things in his legacy besides son Jerry...there was, for instance, that exciting billion dollar water system which was completed just in time to transport water from the northern countiy into thirsty Los Angeles County...

"Yes!" Peter interrupted, "and just in time for another state study to advise us that the air over Los Angeles could no longer support that huge population...they want we should start moving people out of the place, even while the water keeps pouring in. That's some legacy."

Accepting all that, I still insisted that my friend Peter Printem was unduly harsh on the poster printing industry. After all, I argued, there must be one governor in recent California history who has lived up to the promises so boldly set forth on his campaign poster!

"Yes, now that you mention it," Pete said. "Here's my masterpiece turned out for Jerry Brown's last gubernatorial campaign...it shows Mr. Brown on the floor, in the lotus position, clad in simple rags...and above which is the message — "'ELECT JERRY BROWN AND WE CAN ALL LOWER OUR EXPECTATIONS.' Now there's one poster that kept it's promise," Pete asserted.

My advice to Peter Printem was to get out of the poster business and into TM.

A REPORTER REMEMBERS AFRICA

ZAIRE

THE CRACKLE OF GUNFIRE down the street brought to an abrupt end our Fourth of July picnic in 1960, signaling for the first time that a restive African country wasn't going to put up with its Belgian colonizers any longer.

To my six-year-old eyes, the sight of bare breasted natives wailing as they plodded through the twilight was nothing new — but to my missionary parents, the funeral procession spelled further bloodshed.

Their premonitions have come true.

Today Zaire (once the Belgian Congo) is again caught up in a power struggle. The central African country, one-third the size of the United States is fighting for its economic survival against insurgents entering its richest province from Angola.

The copper-rich province of Shaba supplies the whole of Zaire with over 60 per cent of its wealth, a fact that has initiated more than one coup d'etat and numerous bloody rebellions.

A land of sharp contrasts, Zaire is made up of over 200 tribes scattered throughout the heavily forested country, speaking as many dialects. Thanks to U.S. aid, the nation's capital, Kinshasa, is undergoing a massive urbanization that includes ultra-modern hotels and attempts at keeping the roads, railroads and communication systems operating.

A typical M.K. (missionary kid), I grew up not thinking twice about living without air conditioning, Baskin and Robbins and wearing the latest clothes. My family lived in everything from a thatched village hut to a regal Spanish-style mansion, never knowing from one day to the next if our easy-going lives would be disrupted by another evacuation.

When I left Zaire in 1971, I had been evacuated out of troubled areas three times — and always by Americans who were forward-thinking enough to bring along comic books ! It's sad to see the country I once considered my home torn to pieces, again and again, by international politics. And the United States has been in the middle of each crisis.

Not surprisingly, today's turmoil seems to be connected to events reaching as far back as Zaire's independence in 1960, when the country's first president sent politically ambitious Moise Tshombe to the Katanga province (now called Shaba) as governor.

Tshombe's attempts to secede Katanga from the rest of the country were arrested by the United Nations and the United States, who have continued to back strong central governments. The restless natives then — and now — are bitter against a government that depends almost solely on a copper industry capable of supporting the wealthy province as an independent country.

An obscure bookkeeper named Mobutu then came into power as an army commander, and many claim it was he who ordered the arrest of Prime Minister Patrice Lumumba — who was killed mysteriously in Katanga.

Mobutu, who is still president of Zaire, called upon the United States once again to overwhelm Tshombe's second secession attempt in Katanga. Although the Katangese forces were backed by Belgian reinforcements — who were hoping that European financial interests could run the country — the central government held strong and Tshombe fled to Spain.

The tale is a never-ending one. Suffice it to say that Katanga has not been left alone since 1960 — it has over-run by Tshombe's old forces in 1966,and by foreign mercenaries in 1967. Now it appears that Cuban-backed Katangese forces are in the thick of it again.

One of the world's wealthiest men, President Mobutu Sese Seko has competently led his country through many revolutions, including that of nationalizing everything from someone's name (no more European Peter's and Joseph's) to personal clothing (no Western clothes are allowed). A man who can ill afford to lose Western good will, Mobutu has allowed European businessmen and religious faiths to return to the country, after kicking them out several years ago.

Fidel Castro's current trip to Africa and the pending visit from Russia's head of state bode ill for American tax payers who are reluctant to see America's growing involvement in Zaire. But the Communists obvious interest in central Africa means the $2 million in American aid that has already been sent will add up to more.

But why sit in suburbia and complain? Start saving for a really exotic vacation and visit the "dark continent" yourself. Take it from me — it's a nice place to visit AND you'll want to live there, too!

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I was a prostitute for 10 years and I'm now trying very hard to get back into some kind of regular life. I want to bring up my child in a good neighborhood. I was living without any hassles until someone from a massage parlor down the street started trying to blackmail me into going back into the business. I'm really frightened and want to get them off my back, but don't know how to do it. Sometimes I think I'm fighting a losing battle, that there's just no exit once you've been in that life. — B.K.

DEAR B.K.: Your fears are unfounded. If you're so troubled by these people, it might be much easier to move and break all the ties. Make a clean break and choose a place where you're unknown.

Two psychiatrists, Dr. Samuel Janus and Dr. Barbara Bess of the New York Medical College, found in studying 22 ex-prostitutes that it is possible for call girls to renounce their old profession and move on to satisying careers before age or loss of attractiveness force them out of prostitution.

Leaving a field where salaries can be high was difficult for prostitutes and it was also hard to adjust to a certain loss of freedom, but those who wanted to lead a straight life made it. Having a child is a strong motivation for changing your life style.

According to the study, many of the prostitutes were tempted to go back because of pressure from former friends who were still in the business. This is why I suggest you make a complete break now so you can build a new circle of friends who know nothing of your past life.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I have always been night owls. When we met we were night workers. Now I've lost my job and so I'm trying to adjust to day hours while he works at night. I'm looking for another job, but jobs aren't easy to find. Our neighbor who runs large business suggested that if we moved to a nearby town where he is opening a new factory, we could both get day jobs. My husband hates the idea and so do I. We don't seem to function well on an 8 to 5 schedule. Is there something wrong with us? — M.B.

DEAR M.B.: Nothing is wrong. I'm sure part is habit but much more may be involved. Scientists are just beginning to study our biological time clocks, what makes them work and why there are differences. I suspect these preferences for working hours may even be related to patterns formed in early childhood.

We know people dream different dreams in the daytime hours than at night. Mid-afternoon sleep seems to produce much more pleasant dreams and some doctors suggest that patients who suffer from agonizing nightmares try to change their sleep patterns so they spend more time sleeping during the day and cut their nighttime sleeping to a minimum.

Studies indicate that, like passengers on cruise ships in rough seas, people who work night shifts develop a special comradeship denied daytime workers. Night workers are inclined to share confidence and are more open and honest with each other than day workers. They also tend to dissolve status distinctions more quickly.

Be glad that you and your husband share your preference for night jobs. I suggest you don't follow your neighbor's advice.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We know that carotene is important for good night vision, that it has also to do with vitamin A, which occurs in many yellow fruits and vegetables other than carrots. The question is, does one get the benefit for eyesight also from these other fruits and vegetables or is the carotene contained strictly in carrots?

DEAR READER — Carotene is the pigment in carrots, leafy and yellow vegetables. When it is ingested the body breaks the carotene molecule in half. One half of it becomes vitamin A and the other half is not used. The vitamin A is the substance that is related to vision. It cannot improve your vision unless you are deficient in vitamin A, which is unlikely in this age of foods enriched with vitamins A and D.

You get no benefits from carotene other than from the vitamin A that your body makes from it. Vitamin A is much more important than just for night vision. It influences metabolism of foods to release energy to run your body. It is important in stimulating growth because it is essential in the process of cell formation. It is even essential to normal production of sperm.

I hasten to add that there are no magical benefits from popping vitamin A if you are already getting sufficient amounts in your well-balanced diet or are taking as much as one all-purpose vitamin tablet a day. An excess intake of vitamin A can cause severe toxic reactions, including loss of hair, and in children a reaction that resembles the effects of a brain tumor. Excess vitamin A will not increase sexual performance.

The yellow color you observe in fruits and vegetables is not vitamin A. Actually vitamin A is white. As a result, some foods that are white actually contain more vitamin A than yellow foods. A good example here is butter. When the carotene has not been converted the butterfat may be yellow and after it is broken down to release vitamin A the butter is pale or nearly white. The pale butter is richer in vitamin A than the yellow butter. The lesson here is that yellow is not necessarily better. For the same reason pale milk may be richer in vitamin A than a more yellow appearing milk.

Carnivores cannot convert carotene to vitamin A. The carnivores get their vitamin A by eating the carcasses of animals that can convert carotene to vitamin A.

Vitamin A is stored in fat and is usually classified as a fat soluble vitamin, but in truth it can be absorbed from a water solution.

In general, the fruits and vegetables that are green or yellow contain vitamin A. You also find large amounts of vitamin A in liver and butterfat (in whole milk or in butter) and because it is added to commercial products, in fortified skim milk and other commercial milk products.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS A BITTERN?"
A. THE BITTERN IS A HERON-LIKE BIRD THAT LIVES IN WET MARSHLANDS. IT IS BEST KNOWN FOR ITS BOOMING CALL AND FOR ITS HABIT OF "FREEZING" WHEN IN DANGER.

The bittern is more frequently heard than seen! This medium-sized member of the heron family is a resident of American marshes, where it makes its crude nest amid the cattails and rushes.

It often stands motionless, watching for frogs and other small creatures which it snaps up with its sharp bill.

The bittern's booming voice has been described as sounding like "pump-er-lunk, pump-er-lunk." Some people say it sounds like an old-fashioned pump or like a stake being pounded into the ground.

Because of its cry the bittern is sometimes called "stake driver" and "thunder pumper."

While its "pumping" song is a familiar sound over the springtime marshes, one is lucky to see the bird at all.

When it wishes to escape being seen, the bittern freezes into a reed-like pose with its bill pointed skyward.

Its streaked brown and yellow plumage blends so well with the reeds that the bird is virtually invisible.

It doesn't happen often, but it does happen. If you play a lot of bridge you will run into it on occasion. What we are talking about is interference with your Blackwood four notrump.

We won't go into the merit or lack of merit of South's Blackwood call with today's hand. Suffice to say that he did use it and West interfered by bidding five hearts. How can North show how many aces he holds?

There are any number of ways but we like to use the one called DOPI. This acronym stands for double with zero, pass with one. We add that we bid with more than one. Thus, when North doubles five hearts he isn't doubling for penalty — he is doubling to show that he doesn't hold an ace. If he held one ace he would have passed. With two aces he would have bid five spades — the cheapest bid at his disposal.

After North doubled to show no aces South had a real problem. He might pass and defend against five hearts doubled. This contract would have gone down two tricks. South finally made the right decision and went to five spades, where he lost the two aces held by his opponents.

Deer run rampant

In the Bag

The third (or four) Running Deer Competition Shoots was held at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club last weekend. Terry Ludlow, chairman of the shoots, gave the following report:

Distinguished Class, Hank Harkness of Eagle Rock Club had a score of 50; Cal Rowe, also of Eagle Rock, was runner-up with 49.

Master Class, Al Ramsey of Eagle Rock, score 40; Fred Farnsworth of Bay Sportsmen, 40. In the shoot-off to break the tie, Al was the winner.

Expert Class, Art Borgstead of Eagle Rock, score 33; Karl Mossinger of Livermore, 32.

Sharp Shooter Class, Jim Banta of Eagle Rock scored 42; Jeff Gregory of Livermore, 38.

Marksman Class, Mike Christenson of Tri-City scored 35; Mark Protz of Fremont, 26.

From the above, it looks like Eagle Rock dominated the running deer shoot!

There was also the Off-Hand, with following results:

Class I, Cal Rowe, score 43; John Rock, 42; and Joan Gonzales, 36.

Class II, Bill Elsholz, 30; Gil Quilici, 29; and Denny Konersman, 29. In this shoot-off, Gil won over Denny.

Club totals accumulated in the three shoots are 573 for Eagle Rock; 541 for Livermore; 474 for Tri-City; 405 for Fremont; 401 for Bay Sportsman; and 312 for Sacramento.

At the second shoot, Livermore was leading by four points. However, Eagle Rock has a comfortable lead now — what will happen in the fourth and final competition?

Carter Wreden a local gunsmith, decided he'd like to try the new Savage 112V, a varmit special; and he wanted it in that snappy Cal. 22-250.

In due time, the varminter arrived, and Carter made a few improvements. He glass bedded the action, and also recrowned that 26-inch barrel.

He went out to the local rifle range, cinched the Leopold scope down solid, and fired a few rounds. Things looked really good, around a 1-inch group; then the last round went low, opening the group to about 1 and ⅝ inch. Carter says, well, that's what happens when you don't concentrate on what you're doing!

Carter says he thinks that with some good hand loading, that 112V will shoot into less thatan inch. We will get a follow-up on this in a few weeks. Incidentally, that 112V can be had in several calibers. 223-22/250; 220 Swift; 222 Rem; 243 Win; and 25/06 ACL. These are all good varmint calibers.

The California Wildlife Conservation Board will consider the acquisition of well over a million dollars worth of coastal wetlands and deer winter range when they meet on March 24 in Sacramento.

Funds for the acquisitions — $920,000 for 268 acres at San Elijo Lagoon in San Diego Conty and $410,000 for 1,878 acres in Lassen County — will come from the 1974 Recreation Bond Act.

Executive officer Chester M. Hart has recommended that the board apply to the federal government for matching funds for both projects under the Land and Water Conservation Fund program.

Located about five miles southeast of Susanville, the proposed Bass Hill wildlife area is critical winter habitat for deer that spend the remainder of the year at higher elevations primarily on U.S. Forest Service land to the west.

When added to the existing Bureau of Land Management ownership that adjoins it, the area would provide protected wildlife habitat of more than 5,877 acres in an area in which rangelands are threatened.

According to the staff's anaylysis, the planned acquisition would protect winter range for more than 2000 migratory and resident Rocky Mountain mule deer and preserve habiat for many wildlife species such as California quail, chukar partridge, rabbits and mourning doves.

Also before the WCB will be proposals to extend fishing ramps where the drought and resulting low water conditions have interfered with boat launching.

Work at the Anderson fishing access site on the Sacramento River in Shasta County would include extending the concrete ramp and grading and paving a parking area at a cost of $22,600.

Ramp extension and channel excavation work at Clear Lake Highlands (Lake County) is also being considered.

The WCB will also consider actions which would essentially complete a program to provide fishing access to the California Aqueduct as authorized in 1968 legislation and as funded in the 1970 Bond Act.

A total of 18 such projects will have been provided in the counties of Stanislaus, Merced, Fresno, Kings, Kern and Los Angeles in cooperation with the State Department of Water Resources. Local agencies operate the individual projects.

Additionally, the WCB will discuss a proposed $62,500 developement project for the 73-acre Napa River Wildlife Area which was acquired by the board last year and last fall designated as an ecological reserve by the Fish and Game Commission. Planned improvements include and access road and parking, pedestrian bridge, fencing and trails.

The State Department of Fish and Game (DFG) is preparing a contingency plan to deal with fish and wildlife problems in the driest year on record in northern and central California.

DFG Director E.C. Fullerton told the Fish and Game Commission that the plan includes provision for rescue and transportation of large numbers of fish expected to be trapped by low flows, supplemental feeding of wildlife if necessary, trapping and removal to other waters of adult salmon and stepped up monitoring of rare and endangered species.

Mats silence lifeless Grizzlies

Either the California Grizzlies aren't the second-best team in the East Bay, as area sportswriters seem to think, or they are in the throes of a horrendous slump.

After yesterday afternoon's 8-0 thumping at the hands of Granada High School in the East Bay Athletic League opener for both teams, Cal co-coach Bob Benatar wishes the prep poll would just kinda dry up and blow away.

"Ever since that rating came out..." he mused, shaking his head. He didn't finish the sentence, but ever since the rating did come out, Cal has scored one run in two full games.

His Granada counterpart had no comment on the poll, which ignored the Mats while ranking cross-town rival Livermore, a team with a 1-3 record overall. But, he did praise his team's obvious defensive strength.

Bob Parness, who was the winner in Monday's non-league affair with Liberty, tossed a three-hit shutout yesterday as his teammates played errorless ball behind him.

"In our six pre-season games, we gave up four earned runs," Mat coach Dennis Berger pointed out. "I've got four kids I wouldn't be afraid to pitch against anyone.

"We've played some good defense," he continued. "If we do that, with our pitching, we're going to win some games."

Times SPORTS
Dave Weber, Editor

Not to mention the offense, which was dormant till a gluttonous fourth inning burst yesterday.

Mark Davis cracked Chuck Cary's second offering over the right field fence for a home run and three pitches later, Vance Rushing, the EBAL's home run leader a year ago, followed suit with a blast over the center field barrier in Granada's cozy park.

But that wasn't all.

Errors by sore-armed Bret Cary and Larry Walters at shortstop combined with a hit batsman to load the bases and walks to Steve Cox and Parness brought home runs as did a single by Jaryl Hudson.

That was all for Cary, and Walters, who only moments earlier had switched to shortstop from second base, went in to pitch. He hit Rushing with a curve ball to send in the Mats sixth run of the inning before retiring the side.

In the fifth, Kevin Gosney was safe on an error, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on a single by catcher Tim Shatswell.

Granada picked up another insurance run in the sixth.

Davis walked with one away, advanced on a single by Rushing and came home on a throwing error by Bret Cary, now playing second base.

The Grizzlies got only three runners in scoring position the entire contest.

In the top of the first, Bret Cary singled and went to second on a ground out by Tracy Nodlinski. But he was thrown out at the plate trying to score on brother Chuck's base hit.

Chuck stole second to make it two in scoring position and again made it to second in the seventh when he and Roger Hurlow both walked.

Cal's fortune won't get any better Friday. Having used both Chuck Cary and Walters yesterday, Benatar and co-coach Ed Noble will either have to return one of that pair to the hill against San Ramon or go to junior varsity hurler Rick Lane.

Berger's situation is just the opposite. With Gosney the likely choice to start versus Monte Vista, Granada also has Cox and Davis ready.

Stangs topple AV, 4-3

"I think we'll be playing for fourth," said George Cockerton before the 1977 season, modestly ascribing the favorite's role to Amador, San Ramon, Granada and California in the East Bay Athletic League.

Well, after yesterday's spine-tingling 4-3, eight inning win over Amador in Pleasanton, it looks like the only fourth place Monte Vista will be after is fourth in the East Bay.

Junior righthander Brad Miller went the distance for the win, but the big story was the way the Mustangs knocked around Amador starter Rob Wicks, who was the primary focus of attention for several major league scouts behind the backstop.

And those scouts may have been Amador's downfall. Wicks appeared tight in the first inning and Monte Vista quickly jumped on him for a walk, a bunt single and a ringing triple to right-center field by Kevin Jones that scored two runs. Two outs later, Miller lined a single to right and all of a sudden it was 3-0 Monte Vista.

Miller shook off some early wildness byt then Amador pushed across an unearned run in the third on a walk, a single by Wicks and an error. The Dons scored two more in the fifth on a walk, a single by George Ellard and another base hit by Gene Stanley.

That made it 3-3, which was the way it stayed until the eighth inning. The Mustang bats had quieted down and Miller retired seven in a row at one point and it looked like the game might go on indefinitely.

But Ken Krey lined a single with one out in the top of the eighth and, after missing a sign, stole second. Bart Adams grounded to third, with Krey moving up and Steve Jayko came to the plate.

Jayko was hitless on the day and Wicks quickly ran

Cal's Bret Cary waits for the pitch during 8-0 loss.

Rascano outduels Benton

DANVILLE — Although the man wasn't in attendance, there were shades of George Cockerton at Joe Hutton Field yesterday — especially in the late going.

While Cockerton, professor of the suicide squeeze, was tending to his role as Monte Vista coach, San Ramon and Rick Steen went to Cockerton's favorite strategem — the old suicide squeeze play.

It worked. And the Wolves defeated Livermore, 3-0, behind the one-hit pitching of Mitch Rascano.

With two on and one out, Rick Hanson laid an excellent bunt down the third base line to drive in Britt Binns for the Wolves' first run of the climactic sixth and deciding inning.

San Ramon went on to score twice more in the sixth, while Rascano did the rest in both clubs' East Bay Athletic league opener.

Rascano, a hard throwing right hander, checked the Cowboys on only one hit in going the distance for his first win of the season. Rascano, who had only pitched three innings competitively prior to his start, struck out nine and walked only three in an extremely impressive performance.

Coach Rick Steen was particulary pleased about it, too.

"You never know what to expect," remarked Steen, now in his third year at the baseball helm. "(Mitch) Rascano really surprised me. He's only gone three innings maximum this year.

"Their (Livermore) hitters were aggressive and

Downing wins for Gaels

John Downing ended a long afternoon by stroking a solid single through the hole into right field, driving in Mike Hardy with the go-ahead run to give Dublin High a 2-1, nine - inning win over Foothill yesterday in an East Bay Athletic League opening contest in Pleasanton.

Hardy started the one - out rally with a bloop single over second base. Dan Pearson followed with a walk off losing hurler Rick Rosenbach.

Rosenbach pitched all nine stanzas for the Falcons in a gutty performance, letting only an unearned run in the sixth inning prevent him from gaining a shutout victory.

With Pearson on first and Hardy now at second, winning pitcher Gary Rader bounced an infield gorunder, forcing Pearson at second and sending Hrady to third.

Downing then laced his winning hit, and the Falcons failed to score in the bottom half of the inning to give the game to the visitors.

The Gaels were helped greatly by a thrwoing error in the sixth inning to even get into the extra innings.

After one out, Sean Mays drew a walk, and Tony Schiebli followed with a sharp grounder to third. Barry Kortan made a decent throw in a hurry to catch Schiebli, but the ball caroomed off of first-baseman Pat Driver's mitt and skittered endlessly on through foul territory down the right field line.

Mays came all the way around to score on the play, after the umpires decided the ball, if returning to playable ground after going out of play, is still alive.

Rader, who pitched 5⅓ inning of stingy relief work, came through with a workman-like performance, fanning five and walking just two while surrendering four hits.

He came on in relief of starting pitcher Gary Reshes in the fourth inning after Reshes had given up a single and walk to the Falcons after two out.

The Falcons' Keith Suer followed with a grounder to third that Hardy had no place to throw, loading the bases as Chris Neves slid under Hardy's attempted tag.

Rader then managed Rosenbach to hit the ball on the ground, but third-baseman Hardy booted the ball, allowing the run to score.

Rader fanned Pat Geck to end the threat.

Foothill put runners in scoring position in every inning but the fifth, failing to cash in on their opportunities as Rader beared down hard to take the win.

Fernandez wins Alameda Flecto

On the strength of a 23'-7" long jump in the HAAL relays last week, Castro Valley High School spiker Dave Fernandez has been named this week's winner of the Flecto Sports Award for Alameda county.

Fernandez, who last year competed in the State Meet, made the winning leap despite a pulled hamstring muscle and registered three other jumps of 22 feet or better on the day.

Only one other athlete was nominated for the award from Alameda County, Chuck Gangnuss of Dublin High. In a meet against Foothill last week, Gangnuss zipped to a 31.1 in the 330 yard low hurdles and posted a time of 14.8 in the 120 yard low hurdle event.

In addition to the pair of individual wins, Gangnuss also ran a leg on the Gaels 440 yard relay team.

In Contra Costa County the winner over four other nominees was Sam Rothchild of coach Gerry Coakley's Mt. Diablo High School baseball team.

Rothchild's big effort of the week was against the Bay Area's number 2 ranked team, California High, where the rightfielder hit for the cycle and drove in five runs in a 6-1 Devil victory.

A two run homer in the first inning started Rothchild's barrage, and he followed that up by pounding in another pair of runs with a triple in the next inning. A single by Rothchild in the fourth brought home another Mt. Diablo tally and he collected his final hit of the day with a double in the sixth.

Against defending DVAL champion Pleasant Hill High School earlier in the week, Rothchild contributed an RBI single to the Red Devil's 5-0 win.

A trio of Pittsburg High athletes and a Monte Vista High pitcher comprised the remainder of the Contra Costa nominees.

Victor Trapps and Tony Amerson each had an outstanding week for the Pittsburg track team. Trapps, a senior, established a new Pittsburg Stadium record in the 100 yard dash when he raced to a 9.6 finish. That mark is just a tenth of a second off the school record for the Pirates. Trapps later made it a double by winning the 220 yard dash with a time of 21.9.

Against Concord last week, Amerson was a one man show, capturing four events, including two hurdle races and two jumping events. In the 330 lows Amerson sped to a time of 40.4 and he took the 120 high hurdles in 14.9.

Amerson's winning mark in the long jump was 20'-11¾" while he used a hop, skip and jump of 39'-11" to win the triple jump.

Pitt's other representative, pitcher Bob Sisk fashioned his second straight shutout, a 4-0 win over Antioch. Sisk has given up just five hits and no runs in 18 innings of work this season.

Another pitcher, Brad Miller of Monte Vista, rounds out the nominees. Miller, just a junior, hurled a four hit shutout at Acalanes last Friday and struck out 13 Dons en route to the win.

Gaels, Dons win Tennis clashes

Dublin High swept all seven matches to post a 7-0 win over Foothill yesterday in East Bay Athletic League tennis action yesterday in opening-day play.

In another EBAL match, Amador Valley edged Monte Vista in a battle royal, 4-3.

The Gaels received three three-set wins and won all three doubles matches. Stefanie Sibilia, Evelyn King, Sheryl Smith and Jill Tobey all win singles matches while the duos of Chris Lozano and Angie Loder, Jay Howarth and Cindy Grant, and Jane Callender and Carol Allen all won doubles matches.

The Amdor doubles team of Carolyn Hill and Renee Kandell, coupled with another doubles victory in three sets by Mendy Gottesman and Shelly Butera carried the Dons to their win over the Mustangs.

Cowboys squeak by Cal, 68-66

California High's varsity track squad is not the push-over it was a year ago, and Jack Nix's Livermore High team will testify to that after yesterday afternoon.

The Grizzlies came within two points of upsetting the strong Cowboys, but the 'Pokes came through with teir powerful field events advantage to take a 68-66 win over the Grizzlies in Livermore yesterday.

A sweep in the pole vault by the 'Pokes keyed the close win, as brother Mike and John Draper finished 1-2 and Pat Barton was in the hole for the vaulters. Mike cleared 12-6 to win the event.

Wade Andrade won the shot put and Dean Lindsey took first in both the 120 high hurdles and the 330 lows to make up for lost ground in the sprint events for the Cowboys.

It was in the sprints where Cal's Willie Huff, Perry Sellars and Mike Dunn combined to sweep both the 10 and 220. Huff took the shorter distance in 10.2, while Dunn won the 220 in 23.6.

Livermore's Wes Settle clocked a fast 53.1 in the 440, while Robert Churchill soared 6-4 in the high jump to shine individually for the 'Pokes, who swept the event.

Mark Tewes won the discus event with a toss of 142-5, while the Livermore mile relay team came through with a win in the final event to secure the victory.

Cal's 440 relay team of Huff, Dunn, Sellars and Craig Cline won in 44.8.

Mustangs sour opening day for the Dons

the count to one ball and two strikes on the Mustang second baseman. But Jayko hung in there and punched a ball by Stanley into left field for the game winning hit.

However, the drama was only just beginning. Stanley led off the bottom of the inning with a grounder off Tony Adams at first and was mysteriously awarded second afrer the umpire called an obstruction. Wicks came through with his second straight bunt single — and his third hit of the day — that moved Stanley to third. Three pitches later, Wicks stole second and the Mustangs looked to be in trouble. There were no outs, the tying run was on third and the winning run was on second and Sam Jorgensen, who had four hits in the Dons' last game, came to the plate.

But Miller bore down and got Jorgensen on a called third strike and the Cockerton ordered Bob Koopman walked to load the bases. Amador coach Don Bush countered by calling a squeeze play, but Mike Hoff couldn't reach the ball and Cockerton tagged out Stanley, who had already committed himself to the plate.

All of a dudden there were two outs, but the Dons still needed only a base hit to win the game. But Miller forced Paul McCreary to bounce out to secpnd and Monte Vista had a win in the first of many big games in the EBAL this year.

The Mustangs have another Friday, when they host Granada, and then they travel to Cal High next Tuesday. Whether Cockerton's prediction of a middle - of - the - league finish is correct will depend of his pitching depth, and as many as four Mustang hurlers may find their way to the mound this Friday in Danville. — by Clay Kallan they swung at some bad pitches. That helped us out."

Wolves top 'Pokes

Binns, meanwhile, a returning letterman for the Wolves in his centerfield position, started off the sixth by successfully beating out an infield hit. Britt was awarded second base as the throw from third baseman Dave Dearborn (who went on to commit two more errors) was wide.

Tim Rosgen, who was charged with three infield errors from his shortstop position, flew out to center field to drive in Fisch for the Wolves' second run.

Rascano helped his own cause by singling cleanly up the middle for 3-0.

The pitcher ran into trouble only once — that in the fourth inning when two Livermore batsmen reached first and second base. Rascano, however, came back to strike out designated hitter Kevin Fitzpatrick, who was credited with Livermore's only hit of the ball game.

Ironically, losing pitcher Jeff Benton faced the minimum of 15 batsmen through five innings before the roof caved in in the sixth inning.

Benton held the Wolves hitless through five innings and struck out four, including the side in the second inning.

The man who keeps the cool waters flowing

Keeping people in the swim of things at San Ramon Olympic Pool and Valley Community Swim Center is the main job of Bob Elliott.

He is the pool maintenance man for the Valley Community Services District (VCSD).

Elliott said during summer months he spends an average of 10 hours daily at the pools; dividing his time equally between the two. In the winter the figure is eight hours.

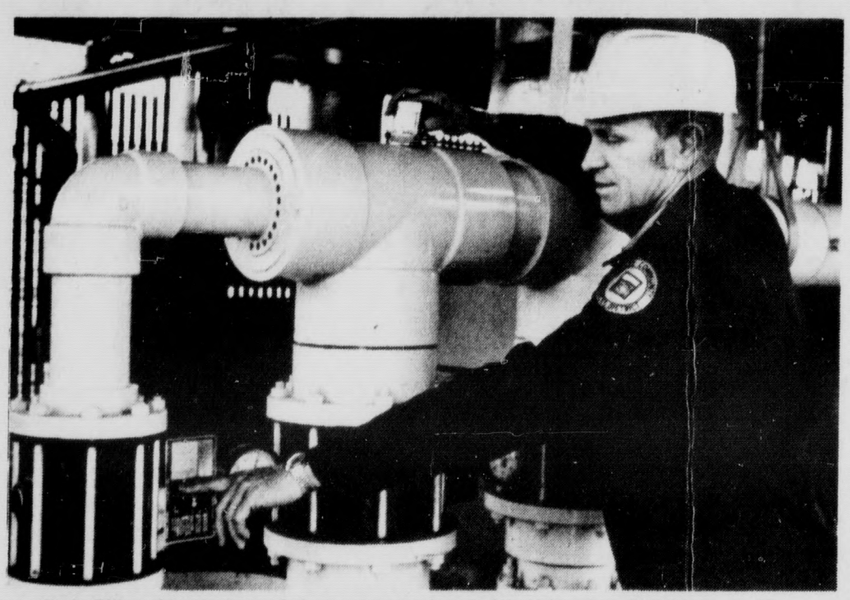
"Once in a while I can get student help," he said.

Automatic systems control the flow of chlorinated water, soda ash and diatomite earth (DE) from separate holding tanks into the pool via three pipes. Their sensors detect chemical levels.

But Elliott has to check daily to see if these systems and all others are operating properly. And he has to make sure the proper amounts of these chemicals are maintained as prescribed by the Public Health Department. He adds these manually as needed.

Chlorine disinfects the water, soda ash maintains the PH balance and diatomite earth acts as a filtering agent, Elliott explained.

"A PH imbalance is what makes eyes burn in water — not the chlorine content," he continued.



Bob Elliot doing one of the many tasks on his job: checking flow pipes.

The Public Health Department decrees all of the pool water has to be recirculated every eight hours, according to Elliott.

"That means 640,000 gallons at the San Ramon pool by California High School and 340,000 gallons at Valley Swim Center by Dublin High," Elliott stated.

Besides overseeing the various systems, controls and chemical levels, Elliott said he has to check and clean filters, scoop the larger hunks of debris out of the pools, paint pipes and machinery with rust-proof paint, keep everything clean and try to keep the pools heated to an average of 80 degrees. And there are forms to fill out listing what has been done, what is needed, etc.

"We're back up to 72 degrees at San Ramon Olympic Pool after a shut down occurred due to a PG&E power outage Feb. 25," Elliott explained. "That outage caused a switch to malfunction in the circuitry related to the main recirculation pump. It took a few days to get parts to fix it but everything is ok now."

Elliott said it cost an average of $3000 per month to heat the San Ramon Olympic Pool in winter time. Electricity for the same period cost an average of $580. — by Sue Vogelsanger

Health advisors needed

Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — County supervisors are looking for some very special people who can fill some very special jobs. There's just one hitch — no pay.

Supervisors need county residents who know something about health services to serve on the Contra Costa sub-area advisory council of the Alameda - Contra Costa Health Agency.

Four of the five consumer positions on the 35-member council are still not filled.

William Zion, Lafayette, has already been appointed to the consumer position for the third supervisorial district (Walnut Creek, Lafayette, Moraga and Orinda.)

Consumer members are defined as persons who are not providers of medical care and who are not closely related to providers.

To apply, call the county Human Resources Agency, 372-2601, or send a letter to the agency at 651 Pine St., Martinez 94553 by April 4.

The new Health Systems Agency which will be responsible for health planning in both counties and will control any remodeling, additions or building of new health facilities.

In a related matter, Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville, is looking for someone to replace Barbara Guise on the county Emergency Medical Care Committee. Guise, of Brentwood, recently resigned.

The committee is a 24-member board responsible for planning and developing a countywide emergency medical services system.

State law supports intentions

Path clears for Trenery Drive ranch plans

HAYWARD — Four new "gentlemen's ranches" may spring up near Trenery Drive and Mohr Avenue just east of Pleasanton's city limits.

The fate of the five-acre sites hangs on the planning commission's recommended zoning ordinance amendment, itself a reaction to recent state legislation.

Commissioners amended the ordinance this week and forwarded it to county supervisors.

A state law which went into effect Jan. 1 forces the county to recognize any subdivision lot fronting on a county road. The county had discounted any subdivision map filed before 1900.

In its most sweeping form, the law could force the county to recognize 48 five- and 10-acre lots created in the area when the Oakland Land Improvement Co. filed a subdivision map in 1894.

The problem came up when four couples filed for building permits.

The permits were routinely denied before Jan. 1 because the land is zoned for agricultural use and requires 100-acre minimum parcels for each building.

But attorney Bill Hirst, representing the four couples, says the state law makes them legal lots.

Commissioners reached a compromise when they "grandfathered" in the four subject lots by recognizing only those building permits o n file with the county by March 1 of this year.

County supervisors will make the final ruling.

Alameda-CCC to seek joint grant

Alameda County Bureau

Future federal Emergency Medical Systems funding applicatons in the East Bay will come from a combined effort of Alameda and Contra Costa Counties.

Both boards of supervisors have agreed to draft a joint powers agreement to make one application to the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare for the next two years.
